World Malaria Day

New developments in the fight against malaria

Conference at CSS (Kommunehospitalet)
Monday 26 April 2010

Welcome to World Malaria Day

Every year more than 500 million people are infected by malaria and between one and two million people die every year due to malaria. However, great progresses are made in the fight against the disease and on World Malaria Day we invite you to learn more about the challenges and the steps forward combating malaria through innovation, research and investments.

Copenhagen Climate Network (CCN) helps companies, organizations or authorities to create viable and valuable alliances.

Copenhagen School of Global Health at the University of Copenhagen promotes cross disciplinary research and education within global health and development.

CMP (Centre for Medical Parasitology) is a part of Copenhagen School of Global Health and a leading research institution within the field of drug resistance, parasite biology, and vaccine development.

Kristeligt Dagblad is media partner of the conference

CCN and Copenhagen School of Global Health invite you to World Malaria Day conference:

Monday, 26 April 12-16 at CSS (Kommunehospitalet)
Øster Farimagsgade 5, 1154 Copenhagen K.
